Conveying Key Information to the Populace

The talk will provide a concise history of English Bell ringing, focusing on its evolution during the Reformation. Through explanations, engaging activities, visuals, and discussions, we will:

- Examine how Tudor and Stuart innovations in design and engineering shaped English ringing techniques.
- Discover how these advancements created the distinctive sound of English Bells, setting them apart from their continental counterparts.
- Investigate the role of bells as an early communication tool, relaying essential information to the public throughout history.

This talk is followed by an optional lunch at 13:00. If you wish to reserve a place for this please use the form available here.
